I thrive on tackling tough problems with smart people!

I am product designer.

With an accounting background, I've honed skills in time management, organization, communication, and analytical thinking—all of which now shape my design process. Through my experience in freelance product design, my passion and excitement for design have truly ignited. My creativity, vision, and talent make me a unique and valuable partner on any project. Now, I'm eager to join a design team where I can learn from and grow with the best in the field.
